Thinking Out Loud

H. M. L.

Federal Judge John C. Knox, Democrat, a judge appointed by President Wilson and a citizen who voted for President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, opposes the President's plan for reorganizinz the courts. He was a witness before the Senate Judiary committee. Some of the things he said before that committee apparently were not carried by the press services. A recent review of some of his statements, appear belatedly in the Oakland Tribune.

Most of the fireworks aroused by the President's court plan have centered around the changes, commonly called the "packing", of that body. To add six new judges in order to influence the court to a more "liberal interpretation of the Constitution" obviously in line with the New Deal philosophy of government, has received the major share of public attention. Judge Knox, however, points out that the reorgaization of the lower Federal courts, providing as it does for the appointment of 25 to 50 new Federal judges, if anything is even more vicious.

The sum of the changes proposed by the President's bill in the form that he demands Congress shall pass it, to quote Judge Knox, " is of a sinister aspect to every man who upon principle is opposed to the use of stacked decks of cards."

Under present conditions when a Federal Court becomes congested and business accumulates, in any district, take New York for example, the senior judge requests the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court to assign another Federal judge from some other district, where business is perhaps not so brisk. The Chief Justice studies the calendars of other districts and perhaps finds that in Northern Ohio, the judges are not too busy to spare one of their number for the temporary work in New York. The Chief Justice accordingly communicates with the senior judge in Northern Ohio, and he in turn delegates one of the district judges in this district. The judge so delegated however, may or may not except the appointment, but usually does so, and if not, some other judge either in that district or another, finally accepts the post. He goes to New York and takes up whatever case may be assigned to him by the senior New York judge.

Under the Roosevelt plan a proctor would be appointed to the Supreme Court who would "recommend" judges to the Chief Justice for appointment to these temporary assignments. The proctor may or may not be a man of legal training, but in any event he is a political appointee. Now note how neatly all parts join to make the whole. Under the President's bill these 25 to 50 lower court judges are to sit wherever their services are "needed." (Needed by whom?) They would have a roving commission, so to speak, being assigned to whatever case the proctor in his discretion might deem advisable.

In a set-up of this kind, Judge Knox points out, there would be ready to the President's hand a "flying squadron" of judges, assigned to preside in whatever case the proctor might think necessary, today perhaps in the New Deal interest, and tomorrow perhaps in the interest of "economic royalists." Any measure dear to the heart of the President, whether New Deal, Old Deal or Rotten Deal, in which the question of constitutionality arose, could be assigned under the proposed Roosevelt system to a deeply sympathetic judge.

Judge Knox tells how he, as a district judge, might be affected when about to try a case in his own court. It is a case which comes to him by the automatic working of the calendar. The judge, having finished one case, turns to the next one on the calendar. Judge Knox calls it " a case between the United States and John Citizen."

"I go to my courtroom. As I prepare to step upon the bench and engage in the trial of the case I am confronted by a man I never saw before. Introducing himself, he tells me that he is a recently appointed judge from a district in the North, South, East or West, and that he has been specially assigned by the chief justice to try the case of the United States against John Citizen. I am, so far as this particular case is concerned, functus officio, and must retire from the scene."

Judge Knox observes that the episode would undoubtedly lead to the beginning of public suspicion: "The evening papers record the episode, and thereafter the public watches the proceedings with lively interest."

Then Judge Knox describes the subsequent proceedings: "The presiding judge directs a verdict in favor of the government. Perhaps he should have done so, or perhaps he should have decided in favor of the defendant. In any event the defendant, John Citizen, takes the suit to the Circuit Court of Appeals. Upon his appearance in that tribunal he now again finds upon the bench a man of whom he has never before heard, a recently appointed circuit judge who has been specially assigned. Once again the newspapers comment. Cynics smile knowingly, and a guarded editorial or two appears in the press."

John Citizen appeals the case to the Supreme Court of the United States. There John Citizen finds the six new justices whom the President will have appointed under the power given him by his measure.

NEW ORE BODY OPPORTUNE MINE MAY PROVE RICH

The new ore body recently discovered at the Opportune mine by the owner, Tom Winrod, and his son Carroll, gives promise of one of the great lode discoveries that have been made in the Sierra County district.

Following up a trace discovered by Winrod last year a free milling vein of ore running from $10 per ton to high-grade has been recently exposed for a distance of 150 feet with neither extremity of the shoot being so far located. Width of the vein is reported from two to six feet, and several spots producing ore showing free gold readily. In addition a large intensive mass adjacent to the vein has been found to carry ore only slightly under those of the vein itself and enrichment of wall rocks is reported to be extensive enough to create a large body of low grade ore.

Engineers who have been on the property state that the size and richness of the vein is best exemplified by the fact that the erosion from the enriched area has created several thousand tons of satisfactory mill run ore in the hillside soil below the contact along which the vein lies.

Location of the find is 1000 feet south of the original Opportune shoot, four miles north of Downieville, and was discovered in 1932 and pan prospects between the two indicate further values to be expected.

Experts state that conditions surrounding the discovery are most unusual for the district and are of such character as to give great depth to the values.

Surface work is being carried on in an effort to locate the exact extent of the deposit, and as soon as limits are reached sinking will begin. Plans for final operation will be made known at a later date, though it is understood with the large tonnage immediately available a suitable reducing plant will be installed by mid-summer.

Details of the ore body will be published at a later date, as soon as mining classifications are complete, and it is believed new impetus will be given to prospecting in Sierra county contacts in search of the same or similar types of ore.

HEY SKINNEY! COME AND SWIM

The swimming pool is open. It opened without flourishes on Wednesday and 150 boys by the African method of conveying good news. soon were apprised of the opening, and flocked out for the first glad plunge of the season. The same rules regarding the use of the pool obtain this year as last. All under 21 years have free use of the pool. Those over that age pay 25 cents which includes a towel and the locker. Children who wish the use of a towel and locker pay 10 cents.

Work on the new filter is going forward rapidly and it is expected to be ready for operation within two weeks.

LOVE'S LABOR WON'T BE LOST FOR SETTING DUCK

The wild mallard duck which has been cared for by Fred Sauvee of the Union Ice company that has never strayed from Deer Creek just back of the ice plant for over two years and which has rated front page news two or three times, should now be eligible to membership in the Chamber of Commerce and other local clubs as she is rapidly becoming an old timer. This spring she again laid a large nest full of infertile eggs. After setting several weeks workmen at the ice house through sympathy, broke up the nest. And the eggs exploded like cannon fire crackers. The determined duck proceeded to lay another lot of eggs and set. Lately nearly everyone visiting the Sauvee home or ice plant were asked if they had any fertile duck eggs. Finally it was suggested calling "Long John" Tognarelli and as usual big hearted John robbed his own duck hens to give Sauvee five duck eggs. The "water front" crowd has checked the calendar and is patiently waiting the 28 days.

FIRE RAZES BEN BOST'S BARN IN GOLD FLAT

Fire destroyed Ben Bost's barn in Gold Flat yesterday afternoon. The property abuts on the road leading to the Mohawk mine. Bill Sharp, state fire warden, and his crew, succeeded in confining the flames to the burning structure. The city fire department arrived shortly after the state crew had gone into action, to be of aid in case the fire should show signs of spreading into the city limits.

"POPPY DAY" MAY 29 TO HONOR WAR DEAD

"Poppy Day" Saturday, May 29. J. C. Chambliss, commander of Hague-Thomas-Hegarty Post of the American Legion has issued a message to all members of the post and other veterans and citizens to observe "Poppy Day" by wearing memorial poppies in honor of the war dead. His urgent message is quoted below:

"On Saturday, May 29, our comrades who gave their lives in defense of the country will be remembered and honored by the wearing of their memorial flower, the poppy. We who served by their sides can never forget the great patriotic sacrifice they made. All Legionnaires and other veterans will, I am sure, be among the first to wear the flower of remembrance on Poppy Day.

"The poppies will be distributed by the women of the American Legion Auxiliary, our wives, mothers, sisters and daughters. They are giving their services on that day to bring everyone in the city an opportunity to honor the war dead and help the disabled and fatherless families. The poppies have been made by disabled veterans unable to do other work. Contributions received for the flowers will be used in the welfare activities of the Legion and Auxiliary."

MURCHIE MINERS AND G. V. HI NINE PLAY TIE

The Murchie mine baseball team played Grass Valley high school on Pioneer Park baseball diamond at Nevada City Monday evening in a lively game that resulted in a six to six score tie. All went well for the Murchie Miners until Melo Ungaro, "Pepper Martin" of the mine team hit a centerfield and was "mucked out" by one of the high school kids. Dan Ungaro is captain of the Murchie Mine team.

APPROPRIATION ASKED TO BUY TAHOE LANDS

DeWitt Nelson, Tahoe National Forest supervisor, was in Reno yesterday in conference with officials who are endeavoring to secure a congressional appropriation of $350,000 for the purchase of Lake Tahoe shore lands for public recreational purposes. In the area which it is sought to purchase, is a cove with one of the finest sand beaches along the lake front.

Mrs. J. C. Egan of Sacramento spent Sunday in Nevada City with her sister, Mrs. Ed Conley.

MINERS OF LAVA CAP TO VOTE

Tomorrow between 12 noon and 9 p. m. an election will be held at the Nevada City city hall, which will give the employees of the Lava Cap mine a opportunity to freely select the organization they desire to represent them in collective bargaining with their employer. The election will be held under the supervision of the National Labor Elections Board.

All production workers of the Lava Cap company, as of the pay roll date of May 25, 1937, will be eligible to vote. Executives, supervising officers and clerical employees shall not be eligible to vote. Ballots will be counted as soon as possible in the presence of the official observers.

The International Union of Mine and Smelter Workers, an affiliate of the C. I. O. and the Mine Workers Protective League, each shall be entitled to have no more than three representatives present as official observers who shall wattch the balloting and assist the government agent in identifying the voters.

Recently an informal vote was taken at the Lava Cap mine which was 77 per cent in favor of the terms of employment agreed upon with the Mine Workers Protective League as their bargaining agent. The formal vote taken tomorrow will definitely settle the matter.

The decision to hold the official vote was made at a conference held Tuesday between E. S. Neal, examiner for the National Relations Labor Board, and Burton Edsises, attorney for the board, O. E Schiffner, manager of the Lava Cap mine, Harry Gouge, secretary of the Mine Workers Protective League and Joe Breen of Twin Cities, Local No. 283, of United Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union and the two or three other members of the local.

This election will settle definitely with which organization the Lava Cap Mining Corporation will deal in collective bargaining.

RURAL ROUTE NO. 1 EXTENDED

Extension of Postal Rural Route No. 1, out of Nevada City, to encircle Lake Vera, has been received with much gratification by those new patrons thereof. The service swings from the Lake Vera road to the right, toward Camp Celio, skirts all the camps about the lake and reconnects with the Lake Vera road at the lake, thus serving all residents along the Lake Vera road. Residents at Round Mountain and to the westward of the road may establish boxes at any convenient point along the route, and later the postal department will assign to each a number. The new service enlarges the delivery territory of John Webster, who is well acquainted to all the old-timers of his new clientele. However, a score or more of newcomers have established homes along the route.

CCC CAMP GOES TO TAHOE UKIAH

The CCC camp is on its way from Grass Valley to the Tahoe Ukiah camp at White Cloud for the summer. Moving started yesterday and will probably be completed by Sunday. There are 159 enrollies in the camp, which lacks only six of being the quota set by law.

FUNNY PERHAPS, BUT NOT FOR THE FARMER

About 100 San Francisco boys are vacationing at Lake Olympia. While they were boating on the lake Saturday they found several duck hens setting on a nearby farmer's property. This farmer makes a living in a small way from his farm. The boys decided to have an egg fight, one duck had only tiny ducklings under her, but they found eggs under the others and proceeded to stage an egg fight, these eggs containing little ducklings almost ready to hatch.

While the Ed Granholm family of Gold Flat were away some mischevious boys entered the premises and destroyed egg settings. One nest full was placed in a box and set into a pond of water. The hens were changed on the other two nests, one hen refusing to be moved spoiled another setting, making two settings a total loss.

Don't Worry About Henry

All along it has been hard to believe that Henry Ford might abandon his faith in this country, might close his plants and quit business because of the collective bargaining idea.

And now, after speedy settlements of the strike at his plant in Richmond, California, it looks doubly improbable. Those who feared a new problem would stampede America's "lone wolf" industrialist seemed to forget that new problems have always been his specialty.

Have you heard the story of how this man Ford, who was supposed to know about nothing but autos, plunged into the grocery business a few years ago with the object of reducing living costs for his employes? Then, as now, the old fiction about there being no room in that business for a "lone wolf," was being proclaimed in some quarters.

Well, before long Mr. Ford was having difficulty trying to keep customers out of his stores. Passes were given to employes, but they loaned them to their neighbors who came and did their shopping. So swift was the turnover of goods that theoretically, at least, everything in the stores was sold before it had to be paid for, which meant that the business required virtually no capital investment.

Any man without much capital, but with a good business head and some expert advice, could have had the same success! It was a typical Henry Ford rebuke to the prophecies of despair who wail that the energetic, individualistic America of opportunity has forever vanished.

Our guess is that no one need worry about Henry. No new law or new problem is likely to put him to rout, or shake his faith in his country. No, not even at his age — which is seventy three.

"NO!"

Should trucks take the business that has been built up by the railroads? Should commercial firms swing their patronage from rails to highway avenues? Should communities jeopardize the assets and distinction that a railroad gives in favor of less commanding methods? The answer is "NO!"—and that's the answer they gave in Iowa.

The following excerpt, under the caption, "We'd Better Stick to the Railroads," is taken from a recent issue of the Monona, Iowa, "Leader."

"The past week there has been an agent for one of the large truck lines in town soliciting business for their company, even asking the business houses to sign up to have their freight shipments turned over to the truck lines in preference to the railroads. We didn't sign and were not backward in telling him why.

"The railroad is giving as good a service as we could wish for; their rates are low as, if not lower than, the truck line's. They deliver the freight to your door without extra charge. They travel on their own right-of-way which they built and paid for. They don't interfere with or endanger your traveling in your private car on the highways. They pay their full share of property tax in each county through which they operate. They support two or more families in each town, who in turn help support the merchant. And, speaking from a newspaper standpoint, the truck line solicitor had hardly gone out the door before the railway agent stepped in with a two-column advertisement for the paper.

"No, we don't believe in taking our business away from the railroads and giving it to the truck lines. As we look at it, the railroads built up the country for the people, and the people built up the highways for the trucks. That makes quite a difference. We have and can get along without the trucks, but we can't get along without the railroads. So we had better stick to them."

SACRAMENTO, May 28. — Adjournment of the state legislature on May 28 seemed likely this week as assemblymen moved to speed legislative machinery in an effort to get some 350 bills off the calendar as soon as possible.

Several important bills were enacted into law last week, including the Olson bill providing for the leasing of the state's $500,000,000 Huntington Beach tideland oil resources.

In signing the measure, which he advocated to the legislature in his January budget message, Governor Merriam declared it permits the state to "derive a substantial income from natural resources which have hitherto been subject to gradual dissipation by private oil operators without proper compensation to the state."

The measure requires the finance director to conduct competitive bidding to lease the pool to private operators for a minimum royalty of 30 per cent of total production. It provides that the state may do its own drilling if no bids are received.

Governor Merriam also signed the Redwine fish screen bill which authorizes the state fish and game commission to construct fish sceens in water diversions where it is necessary to protect fish life. This is hailed by anglers as one of the greatest fish conservation measures.

The senate passed two measures designed to aid in the consummation of the Central Valleys Water Project. It appropriated $50,000 to promote the project, negotiate rights of way and execute contracts and approved a measure making the Central Valleys Project Act conform to federal requirements.

At the same time, word came from Washington that eastern congressmen are fighting the project, charging its irrigation program is uneconomic and selfish. They suggest elimination of the proposed $12,500,000 appropriation for the project. Representative Frank H. Buck of Vacaville charged the eastern congressman had been "listening to W. A. Beard of Marysville," who has been in Washington opposing the project.

Meanwhile, project headquarters in Sacramento reported that there now are 214 employees working on the four divisions and that actual construction of the Friant camp site is ready to start with contracts awarded for 25 duplex cottages, a dormitory and office and 28 private residences.

The senate this week passed a bill by Senator McCormack of Rio Vista appropriating $40,000 for Sacramento river flood control work. A five-day, 37 1-2 hour week for state employees was voted by the assembly. The bill sets hours from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. and gives employees Saturdays and Sundays off. The senate concurred in assembly constitutional amendment 4 raising salaries of the state board of equalization members from $4,000 to $5,000 a year.

Governor Merriam signed the Nielsen bill providing for financing of a new state office building to be constructed at 10th and N streets facing Capitol park. Also signed was SB 216 which will permit a peace officer from another state to enter California "in fresh pursuit" of any one accused of a felony. The senate unanimously adopted Senate Constitutional Amendment 28 proposing constitutional restrictions against diversion of the state gasoline tax.

Sacramento Chamber of Commerce has decided to try to iron out a situation at Salt Lake City, where one of the automobile clubs insists on diverting tourists from the highways leading to Northern California because the American Automobile Association franchise was taken away from the Utah club. A special committee probably will be sent to Salt Lake to talk with the Chamber of Commerce there. The Sacramento directors and a special committee from the California State Automobile Association discussed the matter last week and decided on this solution.

More than 1500 Northern Californians gathered at the state fair grounds last week to welcome to Sacramento Robert Muckler, new fair secretary. Major General Oscar Westover, chief of staff of the U. S. army air corps, and Brigadier General Walter Krueger, assistant chief of staff, visited Sacramento Saturday and inspected from the air the new Sacramento army air depot where $7,000,000 worth of construction has been started Six types of parking meters are being tested thoroughly by city engineers preparatory to a three months' trial of the devices by Sacramento this summer.

Outlook for a deep water ship channel for Sacramento is brgiht, W. G. Stone, manager of the transportation department of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, said this week on his return from a seven weeks' trip to Washington, D. C., where he presented statistical data to the board of engineers considering the project.

World's Longest Suspension Span Opens Over Golden Gate

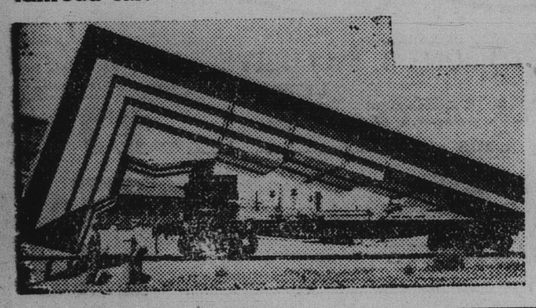
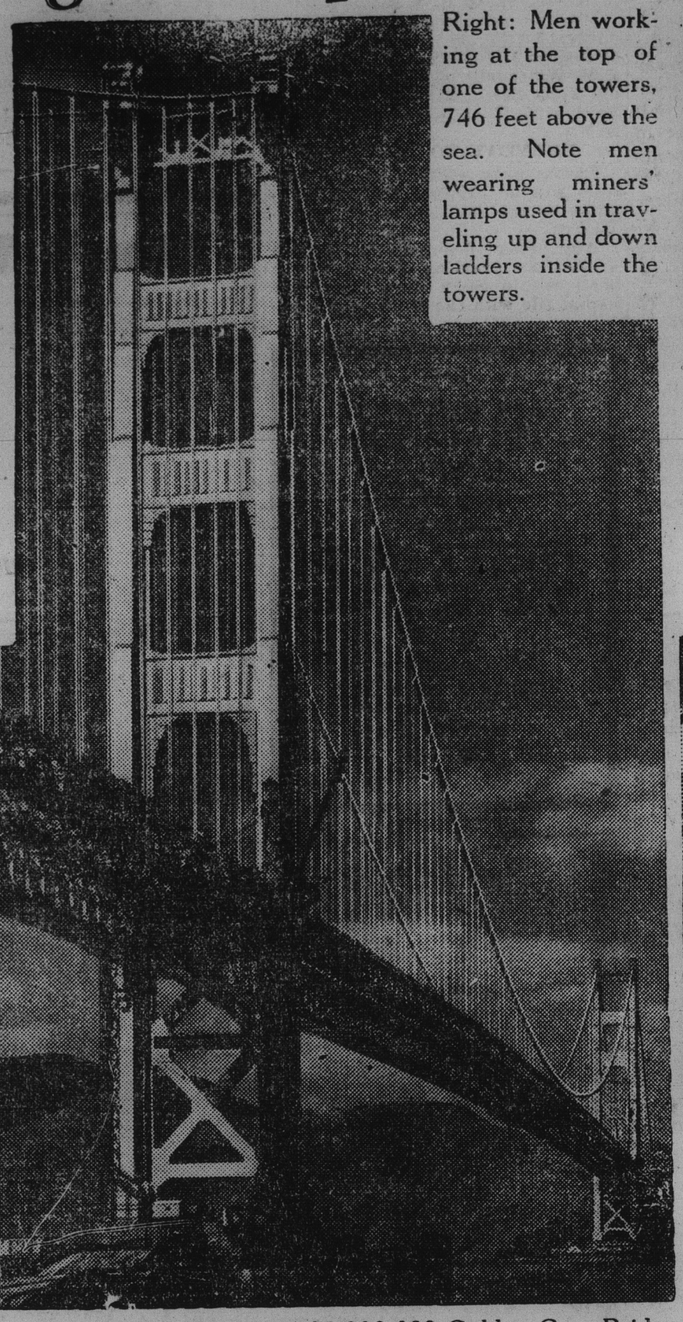
Below: One of the ornamental "corner brackets" of the towers, as it was hhipped from the Alameda Fabricating Works of the Bethlehem Steel Company. Note size compared with men and railroad car.





Above: The new $35,000,000 Golden Gate Bridge at San Francisco. Its main span of 4,200 feet—4-5 of a mile—is the longest in the world. Towers are 746 feet high — taller than most skyscrapers and among the 10 highest structures ever built by man. The roadway, which is 250 feet above water, is 90 feet wide and provides 6 traffic lanes, as well as 2 lanes for pedestrians. The bridge connects San Francisco with Marin County and gives the growing city new room for expansion.

Right: Men working at the top of one of the towers, 746 feet above the sea. Note men wearing miners' lamps used in traveling up and down ladders inside the towers.

GOLDEN GATE SPAN TO OPEN GAILY TODAY

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—President Franklin D. Roosevelt will press a button in Washington exactly at noon Pacific Coast time tomorrow.

A split second later screaming whistles and roaring guns will deafen San Francisco, and the Golden Gate bridge will be declared open to the traffic of the world.

On tiptoes of excitement a packed and jammed San Francisco awaits that momentous signal. Hundreds of thousands from Canada, Mexico, all California and a big slice of western America are here awaiting that signal. It is a signal that will reverberate around the world.

It will mark the rip tide of an ocean of enthusiasm and festivity such as San Francisco has never known.

It will find the entire city with its hair down and its belt loosened ready to jump with both feet into the biggest, gayest, most spectacular and most significant celebration it has ever known, and, in the nearly two hundred years since its beginning, this city by the Golden Gate has known many a festival that has made history.

In the week long Golden Gate bridge fiesta Friday is the day of days in San Francisco. After pedestrians have had exclusive view of the giant span on Thursday.

On Friday at noon the bridge will open to traffic of everything that rolls on wheels. It will be declared open with ceremonies that will start by the dedication of the Marin Approach in Marin county and end on the huge stage of the Redwood Grove Theatre in Crissy Field in San Francisco.

Between will be spectacular processions across the mile wide bridge, the cutting of a golden chain and the breaking of a floral gate of flowers of northern California beauty, Fiesta queens.

High overhead, armadas of planes will sweep the skies. Near the bridge the entire United States fleet will roar with its guns a salute.

On the stage in Crissy Field will be grouped a host of dignitaries and clergymen, bridge directors, state government chiefs, and Redwood Empire officials.

Before the stage a grandstand holding 25,000 spectators will watch the passing of colorful cavalcades from Canada, Mexico the Redwood Empire and California's southland and Golden Empire and from all the western states.

At it Bridge Engineer Joseph B. Strauss will turn over his creation to the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, saying little more than "There it stands".

There will be other speeches, many with Francis V. Keesling, former bridge director, orator of the day, and Fiesta Chairman Supervisor Arthur M. Brown, presiding.

While the speeches are still echoing over Crissy Field, Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, Commander-in-Chief, on the bridge of battleship Pennsylvania, will lead the United States fleet beneath the bridge to its anchorage in San Francisco bay. A spectacle that will be to keep the multitude of spectators rooted to the spot.

Biggest display of the naval power and strength of the United States ever assembled in any continental American harbor in peace time will be this mighty armada here in San Francisco bay to do national honor to the Golden Gate bridge.

For days San Francisco has been festively arrayed. Its streets are veritable glades in a Redwood forest with countless flags waving. Every district in the city is adorned and embellished and members of its scores of foreign colonies, fiesta-garbed, aquiver with the spirit of gaiety that has gripped the city and its multitude of visitors.

The turn of San Francisco's inhabitants of foreign extraction to do their bit will come with a bong and a bang this Saturday night. This will be International Night, when every foreign-American colony will hold its own celebration with old country dancing, folk songs and customs and costumes revived for a night of unbridled gaiety.

JEFFORD INQUIRY MAY RESULT IN FORMAL HEARING

At an informal hearing held at the [illegible] on Monday, of the State Board of Funeral Directors, L. R. Jefford, coroner of Nevada county, and sole owner of the W. R. Jefford Funeral parlors in Grass Valley, voluntarily surrendered his [illegible] to conduct an establishment in Nevada City. It was claimed that Jefford did not maintain an embalming room or casket show room at the Nevada City establishment as required by the state law.

The board took under advisement complaints of improper and unethical practices by the W. R. Jefford firm. A. M. Holmes, the secretary of the board and operator of funeral parlors in Nevada City and Grass Valley, disqualified himself from acting in the case, saying he is a friend of Jefford.

The inquiry by the board involved the funerals of James Tosci assertedly buried eight years ago without a casket. E. A. Kelleher, whose small estate was held to have been administered unsatisfactorily by Coroner Jefford through the deceased's former wife, Mrs. Florence West of Tonopah, Nevada, and Tom Launier, whose personal possessions, including a new leather jacket and shirt were unaccounted for after his death in a cabin near Grass Valley. Jefford denied any wrong doing. Recently he asked the supervisors to accept his resignation as coroner but the supervisors did not act on the matter. Those called for Monday's hearing were: A. Locatelli of Chicago Park, a farmer, by whom Tosci was employed; C. H. Barker, a real estate man; Rev. Chas. Washburn of the Episcopal Church, and Fred Bitney.

It was not decided at Monday's meeting whether or not there will be a formal hearing before the board. J. Ray Keaton, of San Rafael, president of the board refused to reveal the identity of the complaintant when asked to do so by Jefford.
